RUSTIC MOUNTAIN CAMP.

A Week-End Hop With Many Attractions.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. BLUEMONT, Va., August 22. 1904. The Saturday evening dance at the camp last week proved to be one of the most enjoyable features of the season. Dancing was indulged in until a late hour. Besides the regular round dances, the old Virginia reel and other country dances afforded much merriment to all. There were also clog dances and the old black woman cake walk. Both vocal and instrumental solos were rendered, and all present expressed themselves as having spent a glorious time.

Besides the guests of the camp, there were many visiting neighbors. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fuchs, Mrs. Knabe and niece, Mrs. Green Miss Pomroy, Miss Green, Mr. Chas. Mil ler, Mrs. Ruprect and family, Mr. Green, Mrs. Test, Miss Gheshichter, Miss Zirkin, Miss Knabe, Mr. R. Bittenbender, Miss Nellie Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. C. Boss and others. Mr. Samuel Boyd was fiddler.

MADE NO SHOES FOR REBS.

Irish Soldier From Massachusetts Refused, Though Prisoner of War.

From the Boston Globe. A white-haired, elderly man stood in Doric Hall at the State House the other day intently gazing at the battle flags of the Massachusetts regiments that fought to preserve the Union from 1861 to 1865. He lingered long and seemed to be greatly interested in the torn and tattered standards. A visitor noticed the man, and, stepping up to him, said:

"You appear to be interested in those flags?" "I think I have a right to be, sir," replied the old gentleman. "That flag," said he, pointing to the shot-riddled colors of the 19th Regiment, "was captured from me in front of Petersburg by the rebels, June 22, 1864. Thirty years afterward, by an act | of Congress, it was returned to the state, and I had the honor of delivering it to the governor of the commonwealth." "That's remarkable," said the visitor, and the two fell to talking about the stirring days of the war, and the different engagements that the 19th Regiment partic in. The color bearer was Sergt. Michael Scannell of Lynn, who, although seventy-eight years old, is hale and hearty, and is known by every Grand Army man in Essex county. Little by little Scannell was induced to tell the story of the capture of the colors at Petersburg.

"We were brigaded with the 42d New York and the 15th Massachusetts," said Sergt. Scannell, "and we were ordered to sergt. Scannell, "and we were ordered to advance. There was evidently some mistake, as when we moved out it left a gap that Gen. Mahone was quick to see and take advantage of. Without any idea of the perlious position we occupied we moved forward in the best of spirits.

"Quicker than it takes to say 'Jack Roblinson' the rebs swooned down woon use." inson, the rebs swooped down upon us, and we were powerless to resist capture. It was all up with us, and there was nothing to do but surrender. A rebel officer rode up to me and, with a long oath, demanded the colors. 'Give me those colors, you Yankee blankety blankety blank,' said he, with his gun pointed at my head.

"I looked at him coolly and, straightening myself up, said: 'Sir, I have been in this country nearly twenty years, and you are the first man to call me a Yankee.

Take the colors. You're welcome to them.'" Scannell, with the rest of the regiment, was hustled off to Andersonville, and spent nearly twelve months in rebel prisons, suffering untold misery. One day while at Andersonville a rebel officer came through shouting the name of Sergt. Scannell.
"That's me," replied Scannell. He was or-

"Never!" said Scannell; "never!" The rebel officer argued with him and told him that he would get better food and treatment if he went into the shoe shop. I desday events by the gentlemen forming the committee of entertainment and that he would have a chance to re-cover from the scurvy that had attacked But Scannell was firm. "Never!" the reply. "Do you think that I am him. was the reply. "Do you think that I am going to go back on the flag of my adopted country, and make shoes for rebs? Not while I have my senses about me."

Sergt. Scannell was one of a large number of Irishmen in the old 19th Regiment.

Amusements and Edification Harmoniously Blended-Arrivals From the Capital.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

ATLANTIC CITY, August 26, 1904. The favor that Atlantic City has found in the eyes of the automobilists has led to some feeling on the part of the owners of fine driving horses who have been making this their summer home for many years. Their favorite drive was along the speedway to Longport, and they claim that the autoists have made it unsafe for driving purposes. The four municipal corporations on Absecon Island have combined, however, to effect a compromise. A new drive has already been partially completed between Atlantic City and Longport, and this will be finished before the opening of another season. One drive will then be reserved for the motor cars and another for the horses.

The two railroads entering the city report the heaviest travel during the past week in the history of the resort. The town has been crowded as never before, and the incoming numbers are still in excess of the outgoing. The mystery remains as to where all the people are housed after they get here, but the fact remains that they are.

Present. special Correspondence of The Evening Star. OCEAN GROVE, N. J., August 26, 1904. This week there has been a cessation of every other interest, save that of the big annual camp meeting. The musical entertainments, oratorios and concerts in the big Auditorium have given way to evangelistic meetings each evening, and the daylight hours have been occupied from sunrise to sunset with a succession of religious assemblies. The Ocean Grove hotels and boarding houses are filled to overflowing and nearly all of the cottagers are entertaining campmeeting visitors. In the groups of tents, which number upward of 300, there are but two unoccupied, and this picturesque phase of camp-meeting life proves a source of great interest to the newcomers at the Grove. Camp meeting will conclude next Monday with the baptism of infants and the unique "march round Jerusalem." function is a most interesting one, and the big Auditorium congregation files out two by two, and the lengthy procession encircles all the camp-meeting buildings and the miniature representation of modern lerusalem singing as they go, "We Are Jerusalem, singing as they go, "We Marching to Zion." Narragansett Pier. Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., 99 August 26, 1904. Everything at Narragansett this week has led up to the horse show, the crowning event of the season. While the affair at this writing is only half over, it can be set down as a decided success, making an advance in many ways over the exhibits or the two preceding summers. Wildnesd farm, where the polo games are held, is admirably adapted to such a display, which already posseses almost as much relative importance here as the Newport show does across the bay. The event is attractive unsurpassed: bathing, fishing, carboning, crabbing, crabbing, boating, femile, diving, dancing and card parties. For ferring apply to R. D. The younger element here, which seems to have abandoned the bicycle polo of a few years ago, has gone in for the real game now that the field at the Point Judith Country Club is available. The matches, which are not without burlesque features, are so fiercely contested that the players ought to be sheathed in armor. Their grotesqueness extends to the team names, which are as expressive as anything ever invented for base ball purposes. The Free Perspirators and the Never Sweaters are examples of the labels chosen.

A JAMESTOWN DAY.

Reviving Features of Old-Time Hilarity.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. JAMESTOWN, R. I., August 24, 1904. The climax of the local season will be reached this afternoon with the celebration of Jamestown day, which, although it has come to be an annual affair, was omitted last year. The observance this time will be much the same as usual, including the parade of decorated vehicles, followed by sports. A touch of novelty is to be introduced by adding an obstacle automobile race and a slow automobile race to the time-honored greased pole, three-legged run, sack race and potato sprint. On these occasions everything on follers turns out and the display beats the county fairs all

The annual fair of the Jamestown Country Club, now that the proceeds have been determined, proves to be the most profitable ever given, and many think it was greatest artistic success as well. Certainly the cottagers never got inside such make-ups before. One of them was the counter-part of an Italian organ grinder and another of a monkey, while a bevy presented themselves as barkers of the Coney Island pattern, with high hats, beer-glass shirt studs, harsh voices, and so forth. The side show was a stunner, comprising a missing link, snake charmer, glass eater, bearded woman, wild man and dog-faced boy, duly introduced by a ringmaster. The disguises were ludicrous enough in them-selves, but to see one's ordinarily dignified neighbors prancing about as dime museum freaks was irresistible. Something of the sort is consequently assured every summer for years to come. The successful out-come means that various improvements season at the club, which is the sporting

Some of the Ups and Downs of the Pleasure Places.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. NEWPORT, R. I., August 26, 1904. Newport's social sun is now at its zenith. the local season always being two weeks later than at other resorts. In consequence many come here for a last gay fling. Tennis, thanks to violent rain and wind, ran over into this week to keep polo company. The Casino is once more in the doldrums, wing to the rocketlike rise of the Clam Bake Club since its enlargement. First it was the combination of the Country Club and golf that gave the Casino a discolored eye for two or three seasons. Then the Country Club lost its hold and the Casino was restored to favor.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs will never again attempt to prescribe what her guests shall wear at a dance, and all because her white ball turned so white and black that it was really streaked. Even the women added to the trouble by wearing as many modern as ancient costumes. The men positively kicked over the traces, and as mere man has been such an infrequent article here this season as to warrant being catalogued "rare," of course he got his way in short order. The intended color scheme was order. spoiled. Costume balls had their day, or rather night, here years ago, and it is no easier to revive the old schemes in Newport than it would be elsewhere. Glories and Beauties of the Program for Four Days.

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., August 26, 1904. Asbury Park's big annual festival, the carnival and baby parade, will begin next Monday. The preliminary festivity of the period, the queen's dinner to her maids and the members of the Carnival Association, was held Thursday night at the Coleman House. The invitations were issued by the queen herself, inviting the diners to "Coleman Castle." The dining room and table decorations were of bridesmaid roses and smilax, and the souvenir menu cards bore full length portraits of the pretty queen. Assisting Queen Titania in the entertain-ment of her friends were her maids of

The program of carnival week is as follows: Monday evening, the queen's coronation ceremonies in the Beach Auditorium. The old building has been transformed by the decorators into a "woodland dell," the side and rafters being concealed behind side and rafters being concealed behind thick banks of greenery and the outdoor effect enhanced by a running brook, spanned with pretty little rustic bridges. The coronation ceremonies will be the first of the evening's entertainment and will be followed by numerous pretty facey deposes followed by numerous pretty fancy dances. solos and choruses by the children from the various hotels, and will conclude with a little comedy, in which the modern sub-stitutes for "Mother Goose's" characters. drawn from the colored supplements of the Sunday papers, will engage in a funny lit-

The second day of the carnival will include the firemen's parade in the afternoon, the fete of masquers on the esplanade in the evening, which will be followed by dances in the Beach Casino and Arcade, and also masqued balls at eight of the leading The big baby parade will be Wednesday's feature and it is expected that over 2,000 little tots, ranging from twelve years down-ward, will be in line. The parade will include nine divisions. The children will proceed southward on Ocean avenue, passing in review before the queen and her court on Ocean avenue, and counter-marching at the Beach Casino, and return for the distribu-tion of prizes, which will be adjudged dur-ing their march.

The Deal lake water carnival, this year's new feature, will take place Thursday There will be numerous races in the afternoon, for which both boats and canoes are entered, and at night there will be a gor-geous illumination of the lake and the lake-fronting cottages and hotels, which will furnish a setting for a magnificent parade of boats and canoes, with numerous handsome floats, all of which will be gaily lighted with Japanese lanterns.

The past week at Asbury Park has been the most delightful of the whole summer season. The weather has been consistentseason. The weather has been consistently clear and every form of outdoor diversion, especially the bathing, has been decidedly popular. The beach crowd of the past seven days has surpassed anything heretofore known at Asbury Park, and this, notwithstanding the fact that there were aftermoon and evening concerts in the Arcade, several dramatic performances at the Casino and the Park Opera House had excellent companies, playing to large crowds every night of the week.

Ships Go on Established Routes From Port to Port as the Crow Flies.

From the Chicago Chronicle. There are deserts on the ocean as well s on the dry land-vast wastes upon which the eye of man has never rested and which have seldom, if ever, been crossed by the ships of commerce. The waves on these wastes have never been parted by the prow of a sailing vessel or lashed by the propeller of a steamer; immense solitudes where the flap of a sail is never heard nor the strident cry of a siren; veritable deserts, whose silence is broken only by the howling of the wind and the roa: of the waves, which have been vainly pursuing one another since the day of creation.

These deserts lie unforgotten betwixt the narrow ocean highways traveled by vessels. In such waste places of the sea a disabled ship, driven out of its course by a hurricane, may drift for months, tossed by the ceaseless ground swell, without being able to hall assistance. Her only chance of escape is the possibility that some ocean current may drag her into a more frequented region. region.

More of a Desert Than Ever.

It is generally supposed that by reason of the universal increase of maritime traffic the sea is everywhere furrowed by vessels. This is a mistake. Ocean commerce has grown enormously during the last half century, but that development is due to the substitution of steam navigation for the old-fashioned employment of sailing vessels. When the first steamer began to churn the water with its paddle wheels the sailing fleets ceased to increase. With the advent of the screw propeller they began to decrease. The gradual but constant disappearance of sailing ships made the ocean more of a desert than before. Sailing vessels had their established routes in accordance with winds, currents and seasons. The gaps between the routes taken by the outward-bound and homeward-bound ships were often considerable. Moreover, the capricious elements not infrequently played the mischlef with nautical instruments, and as a result the field of operation for ocean as a result the field of operation for ocean shipping was vastly expanded.

This is no longer true today. The liner goes straight ahead, in defiance of wind and wave, the ports between which she plies are great industrial or commercial centers, whither come numberless railways, serving as prolongations of the lines of navigation. Freight cars carry their loads of merchandise to the lesser ports and the cities of the interior. The railway has killed coastwise navigation.

killed coastwise navigation. The ocean highways are, therefore, anything but numerous. The most frequented of oceans is the Atlantic. Apart from the polar seas, we see that in its northern part there is only one desert zone—a dreary waste of waters between the routes from and those from Europe to the Antilles. In the south, between the routes from South America or the western American coast and the routes from South Africa, extends a desert occasionally traversed by the steamers of the lines from Cape Town and Mo-zambique, which, when the coffee season is at its height in Brazil, cross the Atlantic for cargoes at Rio Janeiro and Santos, Pacific the Sahara of Oceans. The Indian ocean is frequented only in the north by lines out of India and Indo-China, and a little in the west by liners from Oceania, which call at Colombia, and then make straight for Australia. Two lines, each with a steamship a month, foilow a slender lane from Australia to Cape Town. The Pacific is the Sahara of the West End Tuesday evening, and all four of these hotels will entertain with formal great seas. Saving only the steamships from the far east to California and British Columbia, a line from Sydney to San Francisco, and a one-horse line (with sailings four or five times a year) between Tahiti and the United States—save for these mere ribbon-like streaks the Pacific is a desert.

Only a few native canoes ply daringly from island to island in archipelagoes girt round with coral reefs—veritable ocean grave-yards, the terror of seafaring men. How many ships of which we have re-ceived no tidings, and of which not so much as a drifting spar has ever been picked up, have been dragged by irresistible winds into those solitudes of the south Pacific no

Penalties for Financial Crimes. From the Atlantic. One of the commonest ways of giving fictitious value to stock, and of selling large quantities of worthless certificates, is by paying large dividends not out of the actual earnings of the company, but out of the money paid by stockholders for their stock. Stockholders and others, believing from these dividends that the company is actually prosperous and earning money, either increase their holdings or buy stock the directors of a corporation who perpetrate this swindle are guilty simply of a misdemeanor. Equally serious is the action of directors in knowingly making and publishing false statements or reports as to the financial condition of the company of which they are trustees. Whittaker Wright (the great company promoter who committed suicide after being sentenced to hard labor for issuing false balance sheets of the wrecked London and Globe finance corpora-tion) was convicted in England under a statute substantially similar to this section of the penal code. He was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. Under this New York law the maximum penalty which he could have received would have been one year's imprisonment or a fin of $500. In dealing with offenses by criminals of previous good social standing we rarely look beyond the offender himself to consider the welfare of the community. for example, a man steals, and, after his indictment for the crime, his friends or relatives repay the amount of the theft, in the offense committed against criminal law devised as a protection for the public is entirely negligible. The greatest bank wrecker in American criminal history now lives undisturbed in New York. He never served a day in jall for a defalcation of $6.000,000. The indictments against him were all dishave returned to some sort of social post tion, and the society columns of the New York Times, commenting some time ago upon a reception at his New York home, alluded with becoming gravity to certain Canadian guests as friends whom their host and his family had made "during their long

Storks Have No Voices. From the Chicago Chronicle.

Storks are not often seen on the American continent, but are commonly found in nearly all of the countries of Europe. In Holland, where they are particularly numerous and are protected by law, their nests are generally on the summit of a tall post, put up on purpose for them, on which is fixed an old cart wheel. A. Dutch gentleman has one such post in his grounds within sight of his library window, but he improves on the cart wheel by having an iron framework for the reception of the nest. The first year it was put up, toward the end of June, a solitary young stork used to come daily and inspect this framework. He was seen there one day standing in an empty receptacle exactly like a would-be benedict inspecting an empty house, con-templating the view and wondering if the
